

HIT-RUN CHARGE IS NOT PRESSED AGAINST DRIVER

James C. Kellagher, Mt. Airy, Held on Drunken Driving Charge

NOW UNDER $500 BAIL

Not Sure He Was Driver of Car Which Hit Woman

LANGHORNE, June 16.—Arrested as a suspected hit-and-run driver, but later charged with driving while intoxicated, James C. Kellagher, 34, of Mount Airy, was lodged in jail at Bristol early today. His machine is alleged to have crashed into a parked automobile, injuring Mrs. Katherine D. Rhodes, at Morrisville, according to charges of state highway patrolmen.

With Kellagher in the machine at the time of his arrest was William Mitchell, 38, of Stonehurst Hills, and George T. Ettley, of the North branch of the Y. M. C. A., Philadelphia.

Mrs. Rhodes was crushed against her car while it was parked along the Lincoln Highway in front of her home. Both her legs were cut and bruised. Her husband, Joseph, notified state highway patrolmen, giving a description of the speeding car. Kellagher's arrest followed.

Kellagher was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lynn at Bristol, and held on the drunken driving charge in the sum of $500 bail.

The one arrested said he is a contract salesman for a Philadelphia department store.

The highway patrolmen received word of the hitting of Mrs. Rhodes and went out in search of the driver of a car described to them. Kellagher was arrested but not pressed against him and no witnesses appeared on the charge.

The following folks held high scores and received prizes: Rudolph Rybins, 854; Mrs. Jennie Niles, 796; Dena Simmons, 786; Mrs. Elizabeth Hinman, 773; J. New Picture of Slain Girl

A newly found portrait of Starr Faithfull, New York madcap beauty, whose body was washed ashore at Long Beach, L. I., under circumstances which indicate murder but which have baffled police. An idea of the girl's beauty, appeal and charm can be gained from this picture. Love letters of the strange girl are being carefully checked for clues following minute perusal of the frank diary kept by Starr.

EDDINGTON RENDEZVOUS FOR PHILCO EMPLOYEES

Program of Track and Field Events Takes Place Saturday

A FEW HUNDRED THERE

EDDINGTON, June 16.—The employees of Philco Radio Corporation, held their second annual track and field meet at the Turners' Country Club on Saturday. The program commenced at 10 in the morning and was completed at seven p. m.

There were several hundred persons who enjoyed the various athletic events, in which both women and men were engaged. There were also events in which boys and girls, under 16 years of age, could take part, such as potato races, short dashes and several other interesting games or events.

One of the most novel things of the meet was the miniature golf course. Everybody was permitted to play on this course free of charge and each time that they played they received some little gift.

The Philco company is pleased with the manner in which their meet was conducted. Every event was finished on time. They hope to make next year's meet even bigger and better.

Rusk-Lehigh Company Entertains Newspapermen

Rusk-Lehigh Oil Corporation, operator of the service stations at Mulberry and the Highway and at Farragut avenue, were hosts to representatives of newspapers in the territory where their stations are located, at a dinner last night in Allentown.

The group of newspapermen met at the oil company's new main office, where they were taken on a tour of inspection, later dining at the Dorney Park Hotel. After the meal, Mr. Rusk, president of the firm, outlined the history of the corporation, finishing his address with his plans for efficient service to the motorist in the future.

The towns represented by newspapers were Stroudsburg, Allentown, Easton, Quakertown, Lansdale, Doylestown, Sellersville, Bristol.

Stanford K. Runyan To Be Toastmaster at Banquet

The arrangements for the banquet to be given on Thursday evening by the Fathers' and Mothers' Associations to this year's graduates of the Bristol Public Schools, comprising both the February and June classes, are now completed, and it is expected that the attendance will reach three hundred.

Stanford K. Runyan, president of the Fathers' Association, has been selected as toastmaster. An entertainment will follow the banquet, after which dancing will be engaged in. A local orchestra will furnish the music. Both the Rotary and Exchange Clubs will dispense with their regular weekly meeting, and attend the banquet.

MORRELL CHAPEL AT TORRESDALE WILL COST $200,000, IT IS BELIEVED

Former Louise Drexel to Erect Joint Family Memorial Edifice Shrine With Crypt to Be Gem of Ecclesiastical Architecture — Will Seat 300

On a gently rising knoll in a partially wooded section of "San Jose," the Torresdale estate of Mrs. Edward V. Morrell, widow of General Morrell, at Red Lion road, near Knights road, west of Frankford avenue, a private chapel with a seating capacity of 300 persons will be erected as a memorial to the Morrell and Drexel families.

It will be the largest, if not the only, privately-owned chapel in Philadelphia county, and will be unique in many ways. The edifice will be owned by Mrs. Morrell, who was Miss Louise Drexel, daughter of the late Francis A. Drexel, banker and philanthropist, and will serve a three-fold purpose, as a family house of worship, place of interment and sanctuary, or shrine for pilgrimages.

The structure will be of Italian Romanesque design, and from an ecclesiastical point of view is to be a gem. The cost of the project, including equipment, will be about $200,000.

It is hoped that the sanctuary will be the scene of many pilgrimages on Sundays, holy days and other occasions, according to George I. Lovatt, Jr., who yesterday disclosed the plans of the owner.

Mr. Lovatt, a member of the firm of architects that designed the structure, said it will be of variegated colored brick, and steel and stone construction, with mission tile and wood truss roof, and will have upper and lower sanctuaries, below which will be a crypt with a little chapel. The crypt will have four sets of vaults, arranged in two tiers, in which will be placed the bodies of members of the Morrell and Drexel families.

One of the many features will be a tower approximately 100 feet high, with a clock on one face. Each face will have three windows, making twelve in all, which will serve as an outlet for the sound of bells in the event that these are installed in the belfry.

The main entrance will have round arches, a characteristic of the Italian Romanesque style, beyond which will be a narthex, or sort of vestibule, of unusual construction. This will be open instead of being closed, as in most churches, and both it and the

RALLY ENABLES FEDERALS TO NOSE OUT THE "INDIES"

Losers For A While Seemed To Have Game Safely Tucked Away

SCORE GIVEN AT 5 TO 4

Schedule for Tonight EMILIE vs. HARRIMAN

(By T. M. Juno)

A two-run rally in the last inning enabled the Federals to nose out the Independents, 5-4, last night on St. Ann's Field.

The rally came after the Independents seemed to have the game safely tucked away. J. Pine, the first hitter of the fatal inning, singled to center, and continued to second on Connors' error; Stromp hit to Bonafancisco and was out at first, Pine reaching third; Brooks batted for Stallone and was passed; Ashby struck out; Custer singled off Jones' hand and J. Pine crossed with the tying run; Dietrich's second single tallied Brooks with the winning run but Custer was out at third, Gaffney to Purcell to Massilla.

The Federals made eleven hits from the delivery of Jones and were aided by four errors. However, the last year's champions proved poor baserunners and lost a few runs by wandering too far off the bags. Five men were caught off base because of snap throws by Jones.

"Ten-Year Plan"

Matthew Woll (above), acting president of the Commission of Industrial Inquiry of the National Civic Federation and vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, has come forward with a plan to meet the five-year plan of Soviet Russia. Woll says: "We need, for example, to meet the cold-blooded Communist five-year plan with a warm-blooded ten-year plan of democratic idealism woven into the pattern of our national fabric."

ELECT OFFICERS FOR TULLYTOWN FIRE CO.

Meetings Are To Be Held Regularly Once Each Month

CHURCH PLANS SUPPER

TULLYTOWN, June 16.—Tullytown Fire Company was reorganized a few evenings ago at a meeting held in the fire house.

The following officers were elected: President, Michael J. Brennan; vice-president, Clifford White; secretary, Lester D. Johnson; treasurer, W. Lovett Leigh; trustees: James A. Nolan, Harrison Streeter, and Alvah A. Vandoren. Wilmer Anderson was chosen as foreman, and Edward Naylor as assistant foreman.

The company will hold meetings regularly once each month and all those who wish to join are requested to make application. These applications will be acted upon at the regular meetings which will be held the second Monday of each month immediately following the meeting of Borough Council. A new lock has been placed on the fire house and members who have been reinstated may procure a new key by turning over the old key to the treasurer.

Plans have been completed for the cold supper and strawberry festival to be held in the social room of the Tullytown M. E. Church on Thursday evening. Tickets are now on sale and selling rapidly. This affair is given under auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church.

Mrs. LaMar A. Doan was a visitor in Bristol recently.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carman, Miss Gladys Baker and Mr. Milton Belmont, of Trenton, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Walters, Sr., of Fallsington avenue, Sunday.

Mrs. John Summers, of Main street, is spending a week visiting relatives and friends in Elmira, N. Y. While in Elmira Mrs. Summers attended the wedding of her niece, Mrs. Anna Allington, who was married to Mr. Walter S. Johnson on Monday evening.

The strawberry festival which was held by the Camp Fire Girls on the Tullytown school grounds on Thursday.

Dinner Served in Honor of Miss Ferry, Pine Street

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ferry, of 628 Pine street, entertained relatives and friends of their daughter, Miss Rita, who was a member of the graduating class at St. Mark's Parochial School, on Saturday. The guests enjoyed a delicious dinner. The evening was spent in enjoyment of music, singing and dancing.

Those present: Mrs. Carrie Wright, Misses Margaret and Anne Boyle, Mrs. V. Coar, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ferry, Misses Katherine and Rita Ferry and John Ferry, of Pine street; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry O'Neill, John Duffy, of Jefferson avenue; Mrs. Mary Wade and Miss Frances Dougherty, of Burlington; Hugh Ward, of Allentown.

LAWN FESTIVAL

Strawberry festival for the benefit of St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Edgely, will be held this evening on the chapel lawn from five until nine o'clock. In the event of rain the festival will be held in the chapel.

Lovers of Flowers Enjoy Blossoms Sent From Bristol

Mrs. Franklin K. Wills and Mrs. Henry Rue will take flowers to Frankford for distribution in the "Flowers for the Flowerless" movement, on Thursday. Many members and friends of the Bristol Travel Club, sponsoring the movement locally, are contributing each week.

Last Thursday Mrs. David O. Taylor and Mrs. G. L. Williams took a full automobile load to the Pratt street booth, in all 17 full buckets of peonies, delphinium, roses, etc., the blossoms being generously contributed by Bristol flower lovers.

The flowers last week were distributed to the Kensington day nursery, Jeanes Hospital, and some presented to a representative of the Bible Readers' Society who gave five bouquets to shut-ins whom she visited on that day. A few flowers were given to each child at the Kensington day nursery for them to take to their homes.

AN AERIAL BABEL

A little bit of talk goes a long way, is an axiom to which all will attest who have had the misfortune to attend banquets or sessions of any legislative body or listened too attentively to an evening's radio broadcast. In the opinion of some competent critics, talk has robbed the movies of their greatest charm. And there are physicians of exceeding merit who hold that it causes more indigestion than bride's biscuits and French pastry.

That joy and comfort of modern life most recently to be menaced by this ubiquitous parasite is the radio.

Time was, not so very long ago, when, no matter which way one turned the dials, music—not always sweet, but music—was wafted or blasted through the loudspeaker. Radio broadcasting has now deteriorated into a lecture forum, dispensing from dawn to midnight talk which, at its best, is less entertaining and soothing than the primitive radio music at its jazziest and most static-speckled stage.

The uplifters saw the possibilities of radio long before the radio engineers had a clear notion of the miracles they were working. The business of nation-saving, moralizing, educating and exploiting by radio is now a highly financed and most efficient industry.

He who first said "some one is always taking the joy out of life" foresaw the radio talkies.

KISSING

The Englishman's reserve in the matter of kissing, on which an English judge has just commented, seems to be of fairly modern growth. In bygone centuries Britain had a distinct reputation for being a kissing nation.

When Sir William Cavendish visited France in the fifteenth century, he was greeted by a great lady, his hostess, with:

"Forasmuch as ye be an Englishman, whose custom it is to kiss all ladies and gentlewomen without offense, and although it be not so in this realm, yet I will be so bold as to kiss you, and so will all my maidens."

A century later Bulstrode Whitelock, when ambassador to the court of Sweden, was requested by the Swedish queen to teach her and her ladies "to kiss after the English fashion," which, though a Puritan, he did, his pupils offering only "a few pretty defenses."

If the shocked lamentations of the brethren and sisters have any foundation on fact, present-day lads and lassies must have inherited an affectionate practice from their forebears. Another evil traced to its lair in the Old World. Another cause of international strife and suspicion.

However, America has retaliated. Did we not infect England with the jazz germ?

In the home town in the old times, the nearest thing we had to jazz was a tinware peddler coming down the pike.

The Wisconsin preacher, who offers $5 to anyone falling asleep during one of his sermons ought to be able to fill at least one pew at that price.

Many Attractions Arranged For Church Country Fair

HULMEVILLE, June 16.—One of the main attractions here this week will be the country fair and cafeteria supper at Grace Church. The country fair will be conducted on Friday and Saturday evenings with the supper on Saturday only.

There will be numerous attractions for young and old: a utility table, candy booth, fish pond, ice cream and cake booth, flower table, soft drink stand, etc.

There will also be a flower exhibition and awards will be given as follows: first, a bouquet suitable for use in church; second, best bouquet of any kind; third, best arrangement of flowers in basket or best potted plant. The awards are a bridge lamp for the first while the second and third are each a piece of pewter ware. This exhibition is open to the public and it is hoped that there will be a number of entrants.

A tasty menu has been planned for the cafeteria supper on Saturday and will consist of: boiled ham, chicken salad, tuna fish salad, tomatoes and lettuce, potato salad, potato chips, deviled eggs, pickles, olives, rolls, coffee and cold drinks. The proceeds of the affair are for the organ fund.

Thrown upon her own resources, Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful and vivacious orphan, applies for a position as companion to a semi-invalid in the palatial home of Mrs. Lorrimer at Westmill, Connecticut. Mrs. Lorrimer explains the ad should have read "male" as the invalid is her son, Travers, shell-shocked in the war. As Mary Lou is about to leave, Travers enters. He seizes her in his arms calling her "Delight" and "wife." Then he faints when Mary Lou fails to respond to his caresses. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight Harford, whom Travers claims he married in England, in order to help him regain his health. Mary Lou confides in her friend, Larry Mitchell, young newspaper reporter. Dr. Mathews tells Travers that as Delight was very young at the time of their marriage and since believed him dead, it is only fair to begin all over with friendship. Mrs. Lorrimer acquaints Mary Lou with the details regarding Delight and her vain search for the girl.

CHAPTER XVI.
MARY LOU fingered, half whimsically, the sheer fine lace, the heavy beautiful material, of the borrowed night-dress. Cinderella, indeed. Perhaps, after all, it was a curious dream and she would wake to find herself back in the tiny Oakdale bedroom with Billy bouncing impatiently on his nearby cot demanding to get up. She missed Billy, she thought, with a pang of homesickness for that rosy-brown infant who had been her delight, responsibility and despair for so long.

"You're lazy," she told herself severely. "Get up at once, Mary Lou."

She added, swinging her round legs to the floor and touching the thick-piled rug with one pink toe, "I forgot. Get up at once, Miss Delight Harford!"

She thrust her feet into the slippers which dangled as she walked—or ran—across the room and pulled up the shades. Lawns and trees and a glimpse of the Sound rewarded her and a perfect Indian summer day. No shut-in walls, no prying eyes, no houses nearby. Mary Lou slipped, started off and, breathing deeply, started her brisk setting up exercises, glorying in the sense of strength and vitality which ran like quicksilver through her little glowing body.

An Early Bird

She had just about finished when a knock sounded at her door. "Who is it?" demanded Mary Lou and was entertained to hear Hilda's voice reply, with no perceptible hesitation:

"Hilda, Miss Delight. May I come in?"

Mary Lou cast the peach-colored negligee about her and assented. Hilda arrived in the room and, if she was astonished to find the new inmate of the house up and doing, she did not betray it.

"May I run your bath?" she inquired, "and Mrs. Lorrimer wishes to know if you will join her for breakfast in half an hour, or will you have your tray sent up here?"

Mary Lou made round eyes.

"I haven't had breakfast in bed," she announced, "since I can remember. Of course, I'll join her."

"And, yes," said Mary Lou, pleasure, to circumstances, "if you would run the water, please?"

A warm, quick tub and tepid shower, gradually growing icy, and presently Mary Lou was ready to dress, which she did at top speed, not being hampered by having to make a choice of garments. She appeared, therefore, at the breakfast table in the skirt and blouse of the beloved suit.

Unused to Luxury

Mrs. Lorrimer was already down and waiting for her. Mary Lou said, as the older woman turned from the windows of the breakfast room to which Hilda had guided her: "I'm afraid I'm late. My watch had stopped—" She held out a slim wrist—"and so—"

"It's a very little after eight," Mrs. Lorrimer told her, as they sat down. "I didn't mean you to get up; I wanted you to have your sleep out and I would have sent you a tray."

"Please don't—ever!" cried Mary Lou. "Breakfast in bed must be a—sort of native talent. I haven't it. I'd spill things and scatter crumbs. And I'm used to getting up early, much earlier than this."

"I'm sure," said Mrs. Lorrimer, smiling, "that I'll be more than happy to have you with me, mornings—" she paused and then added, "Delight," with great deprecation. "Would she ever get used to it? You see, Travers has his tray upstairs and doesn't appear, as a rule, until eleven. So I've taken a lonely breakfast for some years, and I don't think that's good for anyone!"

She was looking rested and serene in a plain, rather high-waisted frock of soft, supple wool, hunter's green in color, belted with leather and collared and cuffed in pique.

"After breakfast," Mrs. Lorrimer went on, as Peter served them, "I generally go to my so-called office for a little while. Then I go upstairs and see Travers. Perhaps you would like to go out and take a run about the grounds while I look at mail and give orders? You don't look to me as if you had ever acquired the house habit. Do you ride?" she wanted to know.

"No, I don't. I wish I did. I've never had the opportunity. Oh, I did gallop around on a pony once, the spring we were outside of London—father had taken a funny little house and we had a wonderful time," replied Mary Lou, frankly, as they were quite alone in the room at the moment and even if Peter had been there he wouldn't have mattered, being himself a part of the conspiracy. "but that's all the riding I ever did. I wonder if—I should?" she asked, rather incoherently, but Mrs. Lorrimer understood.

"I don't think so. Travers never said anything about her riding. He used to ride very well, and loved it. He had his own horse when he was just a little chap. I rode, too, for many years, until the doctors forbade it—not that there's anything wrong really, but at one time I rather overtaxed my strength and injured my heart, a little. I'm perfectly well now but I don't go in for strenuous sports. "Croquet," laughed Mrs. Lorrimer, "is about my athletic limit. That and walking. But I have kept up the stables, so we always have saddle horses for guests and in case Travers ever takes it up again. I wish he would," she added wistfully. "Then there are tennis courts on the place and three rather decent holes of golf. I had those built after Travers came back, but he's never played them. He used to be so fond of all sports. Part of the garage is fitted up as an indoor gymnasium with squash and hand ball and all that. But he's never done more than just look inside. Summers, of course, we have excellent swimming."

Getting Acquainted

After breakfast was over Mary Lou ran upstairs to fetch her little beret and coat and presently found herself out of doors, exploring the grounds with interest and delight. There were, she learned from a busy and friendly gardener, about 22 acres, a good deal of it in woodland. She wandered along well-kept roads between the outbuildings, peered into the garage, which housed several cars, one of them

Rally Enables Federals
To Nose Out The "Indies"

ters of the evening with a home run drive and a double. His four-base hit put the Independents in the lead in the fourth and looked like the winning margin until the Federals put on their two-run spurt in the seventh.

"Mike" Riola starred defensively for the winners, attributing several fine stops and throws to rob several Independents' batters of hits.

The Federals took the edge in the first frame. Custer fouled out to Genco; Dietrich singled to center; Barrett flied to right; W. Fine's hit to center scored Dietrich; Riola lifted to Connors.

The lead lasted until the third when the Independents shoved three runs across the plate. Bonafrancisco doubled to center; Antonelli singled off Riola's shins; Bonafrancisco scored on a wild pitch, Ashby being charged with an error; Connors was passed and went to second unmolested; Gaffney struck out; Gleason batted for Genco and delivered a single over short, scoring Antonelli and Connors; Purcell and Avella rolled out.

Two runs in the Federals' fourth deadlocked the score. Barrett was passed; Fine hit to Massilla and Barrett was forced at second with the aid of Gleason; Riola forced Fine, Gleason to Bonafrancisco; J. Fine tripled to right center, scoring Riola; Morrell singled to right, tallying J. Fine; Morrell was caught off first, Jones to Avella.

Bonafrancisco's home run to right center gave the Independents a one-run lead in the fourth only to have the Federals come back with two in the seventh to win the game.

Good - they've got to be good!

From coast to coast
1,215,809 railroad men
[IN THE U. S. A.]
get you "there" on time!

Engineers, conductors, brakemen, firemen, signalmen—here's an army whose praises are too seldom sung. Think what duty costs these "soldiers of peace" as husbands and fathers away from their homes. Think what their watchfulness means to your safety and comfort—and salute them!

You don't worry about them—you don't have to!

Sixty... seventy... eighty miles if needed. You don't worry—you know there is a sure hand at the throttle!

And just as casually you light a CHESTERFIELD—knowing that every safeguard for its quality, purity and good taste has long since been per-fectured. CHESTERFIELDS are milder because they're made that way—from riper, milder tobacco and pure imported cigarette paper.

You can smoke as many as you like and you'll like as many as you smoke!

CHESTERFIELDS taste better.
